Why protect your new car?

Modern paint needs modern protection

Today's vehicle paints are water-based, which makes them more environmentally friendly, but also more vulnerable to damage.

The Solution

CX3 Ceramic Graphene, using advanced coating technology for long-lasting protection.

What is Graphene?

- Developed in the UK
- Made from carbon, extracted from graphite
- Around 200 times stronger than steel
- Extremely tough, durable and flexible

How does it work?

CX3 uses a 2-stage professional system:

- Stage 1: Pre-Clean.
- Thoroughly cleans and prepares the paintwork for maximum bonding
- Stage 2: Ceramic Graphene Coating.
 - Advanced polysilazane ceramic coating
 - Cross-linking bond for durability
 - Bonds directly to the paintwork

CX³ CERAMIC GRAPHENE

Stage 1 - Creating a Contaminant Free Surface:
A deep and thorough cleaning process that removes all traces of contaminants and correctly prepares the paint surfaces for the next stage, which ensures the best possible finish.

Stage 2 - Interlaced Flexible Graphene Sheets:
Graphene is made up of sheets of carbon rings forming a net like structure one molecule thick. These can be used to form a lattice of ultrafine molecular sheets which add to the durability and resistance of materials.

Graphene binds to the paintwork.

Hydrophobic Surface:
Repels water, dirt, moisture and other chemical contaminants.

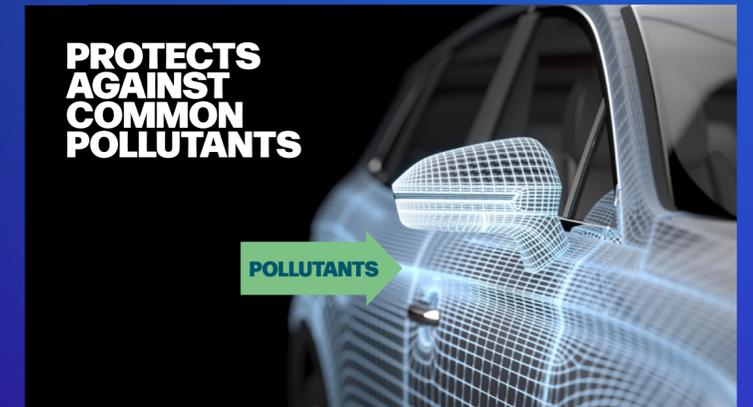

Stage 2 - Polysilazane Ceramic:
Seals in the Graphene Core, building an additional layer of hydrophobic protection, increasing film thickness. This not only provides additional gloss but more importantly provides increased durability, wear, wash and weather resistance.

Unrivalled Durability:
Multilayered protection retains its flexibility whilst building depth which remains firmly bound to each other and tightly to the paintwork, enhancing wear resistance, without sacrificing the coatings ability to expand and flex with the surface of the paint.
